the horse chosen as the Queen's Jubilee gift. The filly was by this time two years old and had not been named. The Queen said that she was grateful for this wonderful present from the Australian people and had decided that a suitable name for the filly who was a Silver Jubilee gift would be Australia Fair. The Canberra Times said the "Queen then got close enough to look a gift horse in the mouth in a literal sense while Prince Philip mowed a handful of vice-regal lawn to offer to the acquisition to the Royal Stable".

After this pleasant interlude, the Queen left Government House to perform the main function of the opening of the new High Court building on the shores of Lake Burley Griffin.

The Canberra Times reported the Queen's speech in which she said; "The High Court of Australia has been pleased to contribute to the judiciary
